County building funding approved

by Jerry Grozelle

Haliburton County has received confirmation that two-thirds funding for a new $2.4 million county administrative building has been approved. The funding will be made available through the Canada/Ontario Infrastructure Works Program. The construction project would create an estimated 37 person years of employment. It has been proposed that the new structure could also provide accommodation for the Minden OPP office and possibly other government offices as well.

A press release issued jointly by Municipal Affairs Minister Ed Philip, Victoria-Haliburton MP John O'Reilly and Haliburton County Warden Jim McMahon, states: "The new building in the Township of Minden will be designed to improve public access by locating several public services under one roof and by making the building accessible to persons with disabilities.

Although County Council has not given final approval for the project, which would cost the county an estimated $800,000, the press release adds that work on the building is scheduled to start early in 1995 with a target completion date of November 1995.

"Job creation is a priority for all three levels of government and I am extremely pleased to see the Canada/Ontario Infrastructure Works program at work," said O'Reilly. "The project announced here today not only demonstrates our commitment to creating jobs, but the residents of Haliburton County will also benefit directly from the improved municipal services that the new administrative building will offer."

"This proposal will be the key to maintaining effective policing services in the county while strengthening the county's ability to operate efficiently in the future," said county warden Jim McMahon.

McMahon says he sees a new county building as a key to economic recovery in the county.

"Although the job creation will be short term, it will certainly be a boost to the economy of Haliburton County," McMahon said. "We'd never see this kind of money brought into the county for any other kind of project."

Grants of two-thirds the cost of any project are virtually unheard of any more and McMahon said "This is an opportunity of a lifetime."

McMahon said that getting funding approval was the first step.

"My only hope is that county council will look at it with an open mind, in the best interest of the county," he said. "If the Highway 35 location is agreed to by council, it would give any visitors to the area a positive image of our county."

DONATIONS APPRECIATED: The Minden and Area Police Support Association held a drive on the weekend of December 3 and 4 to collect toys, clothing and food. People were encouraged to drop off items at the office on Minden's Main Street. Response was "very good" according to association president Don Stromberg. The toys and clothing items were turned over to the Canadian Sunday School Mission for distribution and the food items went to the United Church. Seen here with some of the donations are constable Rick Gooch of the Minden OPP (left), Barb Rayment (front) and Don Stromberg, of the Police Support Association.

Stanhope to study ice and water rescue

by Andrew Milne

An animated discussion at the inaugural meeting of the new Stanhope council concluded with council deciding to conduct a study on doing level one ice and water rescue.

The issue has been argued over in the municipality since August of 1992, when the council, then under the leadership of reeve Fred Gardner, passed a resolution barring the fire department from participating in any rescues on water or ice.

Gardner lost the reeve's chair to challenger Jock Mavor in the November 14 election, probably partly due to his stance on the rescues.

The history of the issue actually goes back to July 1990, when a Port Colborne volunteer firefighter drowned during a rescue attempt. The Ministry of Labour (MOL) investigated the incident and charged the fire chief and deputy fire chief on the basis of the Occupational Health and Safety Act — in particular for failing to provide appropriate training and take appropriate precautions.

The ministry eventually lost the case. But Stanhope's resolution — taken in part to protect the municipality from such suits — still stands.

Carol Moffatt, who ran for council in the last election, has worked as a reporter (for The Times and for The Toronto Star) and researched the issue in that capacity. She told the October 29 all-candidates' meeting that all that is required from the MOL before fire departments can do the rescues, is that they provide proper training and equipment and that they follow a standard operating procedure.

In the case of level one rescue, says Moffatt, in which the rescues are done from land, the department already has the relatively simple equipment required.

Currently, if you get into trouble on the ice or water, the fire department isn't supposed to help you.

Mavor had said quite clearly during his campaign that he intended to change this. And in this, the first meeting of his new council, he seemed determined to start.

But he encountered distinct opposition from two members of council — deputy-reeve Eleanor Harrison and councillor Murray Daniels — who had sat on the old council, and who had worked on the resolution barring the rescues.

"Prior to beginning a study," said Harrison, "or prior to advising the fire department, since it was we as a municipality — and my name's on it as well — who made the motion in 1992, I think that we should be speaking to county council, even if just for Murray and myself. We put quite a bit of work into this, and we didn't make our minds up overnight... Concurrence was by the county, which got an answer back, plus other municipalities. And I think in all fairness we made this first move, and now we are reversing it, I would say, or attempting to reverse it is may be a better word, and I think that in all fairness — since I'm still part of the council and still part of the county council and Murray's still part of this council — we owe it to the two of us if nothing else and to the council who passed it, to at least inform county council that we are having second thoughts."

Harrison also insisted that she would not vote for any "enhancement of services" on the part of the fire department until the county had completed its study of fire services.

A comprehensive study of fire services across Haliburton County is currently underway. However Dave Carr, of the Fire Marshall's Office (FMO), who is doing the study for the county, when asked by The Times, described the study in its current form as a very general overview of what services are currently in place in the county.

"I think if you use the term 'assessing what exists', it hits the nail right on the head," said Carr.

Carr also said the study would not, in all likelihood, be completed for at least a year, or possibly two years.

The study has not specifically looked into ice and water rescue yet, though it may at some point in the future, says Carr.

"I would think when we get into the operational side," said Carr, "we're probably going to have to. We're going to have to look at what exists in each municipality."

Newly elected councillor Ann Barker took exception to Harrison's describing the rescues as an "enhancement of services."

"Up until council directed the fire department that they could not respond to ice and water rescues," said Barker in the December 7 meeting, "they were doing it. So we're not enhancing. You have taken away something that they were already doing."

"I don't think that any of them thought they needed permission to do it at that point," she continued. "It was only because of this problem which happened where the firefighter lost his life, that it came to light and council stepped in. Up until then, I mean people who served on this council were also fire fighters, and went out to many ice and water rescues that happened to be called for over the past 21 years. It is not something new that they're doing. It is something they have always done."

And Mavor took exception to any implication that he did not intend to inform the county of the intended study.

"We keep coming back to this notion," said Mavor. "I'd like to know where this thinking came from that no one was going to communicate with county council."

The discussion concluded with council agreeing that Stanhope representatives would meet with the fire department to prepare a report on the steps necessary and costs involved in preparing the department to do the rescues, provided that the meeting did not occur until after the county had been informed, at its first meeting on December 14.

Remembering the Montreal massacre

by Andrew Milne

The fifth anniversary of the massacre at the École Polytechnique in Montréal was marked by services of remembrance and mourning across the country.

On December 6, 1989, Marc Lépine murdered 14 women and wounded 13 others at the École Polytechnique in Montréal. He quite specifically targeted women during the course of his spree, and surviving eyewitnesses say he made his intent to do so quite clear.

In Haliburton, at the headquarters of the Women's Safety Network, outreach counsellor Connie Thompson spoke to the crowd that had gathered to remember, of a need to take steps for positive change.

"On December 6, 1989," said Thompson, "one man murdered 14 women in Montreal. This was not an isolated act. Men who abuse and murder women are brought up to have power and control in a culture that devalues women."

"We must never forget," said Thompson, "the women murdered on December 6, 1989 and all women who suffer from male violence. We must transform our outrage and our tears into action now."

"At the same time that we mourn," continued Thompson, "we have to work harder than ever for changes. And women shouldn't be expected to continue fighting against violence alone."

Thompson then spoke of a need for all members of society to act towards this goal — for parents and teachers to teach children to reject gender stereotyping, for health and social service workers and law enforcers to deal sensitively and respectfully with women who have been assaulted, for employers and unions to prevent harassment in the workplace, and for men in general to confront traditional attitudes and to take responsibility for stopping violent behaviour in themselves and in other men.

The inaugural meetings of local councils and the school board also marked the passing of the anniversary.

At the first meeting of the newly elected school board, which actually fell on December 6, Director of Education Brad Saunders asked the board for a few moments of silence to remember the women who died at the École, as well as other women who have been victims of violence.

"We live in a violent society," said Saunders. "As members of this board we have committees that are studying violence in our schools — with particular emphasis on violence towards women. I wonder if you could join with me in a moment of silence in memory of those women."

At the December 7 inaugural meeting of the Stanhope municipal council, newly elected reeve Jock Mavor ended his first address to the council and the public with statements in support of the women's emergency house, a facility being built in Haliburton to temporarily house women fleeing abusive relationships. Support Initiative for Residents of the County of Haliburton (SIRCH), the agency building the house, is looking for sponsors to pledge donations towards the facility.

Thompson at the vigil in Haliburton: "Women shouldn't be expected to continue fighting against violence alone."

Mavor mentioned the passing of the 5th anniversary of the massacre, and then publicly endorsed SIRCH's efforts.

"I am most supportive," said Mavor, "of anything that will combat violence in the home either against women or children."

The women's safety network serving the counties of Peterborough and Haliburton, reports their network dealt with 154 cases of reported abuse between April and September of 1994, and 267 women and children came to their shelters. The former number does not include cases from the city of Peterborough, while the latter number does. The combined population of the two counties, including the city of Peterborough, is around 134,000 as of the 1991 census.

The Ontario Association for Interval and Transitional Houses (OAITH), a lobby group comprising organizations running shelters, reports that there have been 119 murders of women by their intimate partners or former intimate partners since the current provincial government took power.

New board meets

by Andrew Milne

The newly elected board of education had its first meeting December 6.

Highlights of the meeting: John Munro, trustee for Sherborne et al has been elected chair of the board. Wendy Ladurantaye, trustee for Anson, Hindon and Minden was elected deputy chair. On the advice of the Director of Education, Brad Saunders, the board passed a motion deferring making a final decision on selecting a solicitor until the next meeting.

Saunders suggested looking into finding a new solicitor for the board because a partner in the firm currently used is also an important advisor to the Ontario Public School Boards Association (OPSBA), and, says Saunders, this sometimes puts the administrators of the Haliburton board in a difficult position in interpreting social contract legislation.

"It's a problem," Saunders later told The Times, "only to the extent that this gentleman, Mr. Bruce Stewart, is a highly capable lawyer, but in his capacity as solicitor to the Ontario Public School Boards Association, I think, perhaps understandably, the advice is always from a board point of view."

"We get caught in the middle," continued Saunders, "between conflicting

McMahon, Rabjohn, Anthon in favour; Fearrey expresses reservations

New building to be debated at first county meeting

McMahon believes a new building would go a long way toward ensuring that police services would remain in Minden and Haliburton by providing administrative facilities. The lease on the current OPP building in Minden will expire in 1996 and it is unlikely that it will be renewed because of the cramped conditions.

"The time has come when we, the elected officials have to take a leading role here," McMahon said.

"There will be considerable savings by having all of the agencies under one roof.

McMahon added that productivity of employees is likely to increase because of the new environment.

McMahon said the old building needs major repairs and he can't justify spending great sums of money on it. He added that a new building would be much more cost effective to operate.

Among the services that could be housed in a new building, besides the county administration and OPP, would be social services, the Registry office, county roads office, possibly the probation office and, as McMahon says, "any provincial agencies that require space".

He added that when the Health Services Board is up and running, there will be a need for office space.

"The door is wide open for opportunity," McMahon said. "I see it as a win, win situation."

The county warden said that he has a plan to come up with the county's share of the funds. He will outline his plan at the December 14 meeting of county council.

Anthon: "A good investment"

Jeanne Anthon, reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden, views the announcement as "good news", adding, "It's a one-time opportunity that shouldn't be passed up."

Anthon said that she is trying to sort out the information she has at hand. "Not having sat on county council, I'm not aware of the budget problems related to this proposal," she said.

"I think this county deserves a proper structure.

She added that it would be postponing the inevitable to delay construction of a new building.

"We are talking about a lot of new dollars coming into this county too, with that proposal," Anthon said. "It won't be just what we spend, twice that will be coming into the county. I feel that it would be money well spent."

She said that it will be tough decision time at the county table.

"To me, it's a good investment in the future," she said. "Sometimes you have to spend today's money in the interest of good financial planning. I'll have to wait and see what all the attitudes are around the table."

Anthon said that she will be speaking in favour of the proposal at this week's county council meeting.

"We'll never have this opportunity to have provincial and federal funding. It's going to create jobs and employment hours and that's something the county desperately needs."

Rabjohn: Location "irrelevant"

Another Haliburton County reeve also considers the project as a opportunity that could benefit the entire county.

"It's something that I think the new (county) council will have to take a very good look at," said Ross Rabjohn, reeve of Sherborne et al.

Rabjohn pointed out many of the problems related to the current county building on Newcastle Street, including the fact that walls are poured concrete, which offer very little in the way of insulation; small rooms; deterioration of the outside of the structure; limited space for expansion; windows that are not energy efficient; and concerns expressed by the fire marshal's office about the fire safety of the building, among others.

"So, what are we into to make that old building suitable for the 21st century?" he asked.

Rabjohn suggests that the cost of renovating the old building may be prohibitive.

He said there are other factors to consider as well. He expressed the concern that if a new facility isn't found for the OPP detachment by the time the lease is up on the present facility, there may be a danger of losing some of the police services.

"I think that people have to realize that we're not looking at building some kind of Taj Mahal, which we can't afford. I think that our log cabin is falling down and we need to replace it," Rabjohn said.

He added that county officials will have to do some number crunching and explore a number of options as far as construction of a new building is concerned.

Rabjohn says he is leaning towards approval of the construction of a new facility at this time but he qualified his statement by saying that he will need to have more information before he would be willing to make any commitment.

Regarding the selection of where in the county a new facility should be constructed, he said: "That argument is completely irrelevant. We're looking at the county of Haliburton... we have to look at what's best for the county and there should be no further discussion. Whatever you do in Minden helps all of us."

Fearrey: Favours renovations

Dysart et al reeve Murray Fearrey is going to need some convincing before he will support the construction of a new county building. He admits that he has melted slightly from his original stance of being totally against the idea.

"The position I've taken on it, based on the information I now have in front of me, I'd have to say that the money would be better spent expanding the present building and perhaps fix the roof on Hyland Crest," he said.

Although the funding has been earmarked for the construction of a new county building, Fearrey believes "nothing is etched in stone." He said that the main thrust of the infrastructure funding is job creation. "That's what was applied for, so that's what was approved," he insists.

Fearrey said that there may be information that he hasn't seen that could change his mind. He added that he hasn't seen any plans or figures regarding the income potential of renting facilities in the building to prospective tenants such as the OPP and other service agencies.

Unlike other reeves who were contacted for comment, Fearrey doesn't think a new building would be a drawing card for the area.

"A county building doesn't need a high profile. Nobody attends the thing, other than to go and get welfare," Fearrey said.

The Dysart et al reeve said that he will examine the proposal with an open mind.

There may be other information I'm not aware of," he said.

"I guess we'll have to look at where the money's going to come from," Fearrey said. "Nobody's explained that to me yet... In fairness to the whole project, there needs to be some dialogue on it and there needs to be some plans shown. I don't know how much preliminary work has been done on it. You always have to have an open mind until you see all the facts."

In applying for the infrastructure funds, county officials estimated the square footage required by each of the proposed tenants, including the OPP. A figure of 20,000 square feet of space was arrived at and an architect was consulted to determine a reasonable per-square-foot cost.

The subject is expected to be debated in detail at this week's county council meeting.

points of view. The federation lawyer will come up with obviously a pro-Federation point of view. The board lawyer will come up with a pro-Board point of view. And we're left in the middle trying to find common ground, and that's why we felt it might be of use to consider a law firm that was not associated with the Public School Boards Association."

"The social contract is a piece of legislation that required boards to take action," explains Saunders. "Now, the social contract legislation was legislation that was hammered out at the last minute. It, in many cases, is ambiguous in terms of wording and interpretation. And so because of the ambiguity surrounding many of the clauses in the social contract legislation, you are left as an administrator trying to gain the most accurate legal sense possible. And that's where you get into the difficulty of a pro-board interpretation versus a pro-federation interpretation."

The board struggled somewhat with the issue, however. Some trustees wanted to know why, if this was a problem, they hadn't heard about it last year. Saunders' answer was that the board hadn't had to deal with the social contract before this year. A motion that the issue simply be tabled to the next meeting failed, evidently due to the concern that by-laws require that the board appoint a solicitor at the first meeting. On closer reading, however, the board decided that since the by-law only requires that they "consider" the appointment, they were free to look into options and make a decision later.

In the meantime, the administration has been directed to continue using the current firm should any legal issues arise.

Munro spoke briefly on accepting his election as chair. Among other things, he addressed the board's relationship to the students and the community. Munro told the board that the committee on anti-racism, of which he is a member, would be an "ideal model" for the board to follow in its dealings with the community.

Said Munro, "We are involving the people and getting input not just from trustees and staff but from students and the general public. And I think that by listening to the people — to the county — and to the students — that our policies, actions and decisions will affect... that it [the anti-racism policy] will be the best policy that we can possibly have."

The next full meeting of the board will be January 31, 1995.

Fearrey suggests Dysart and AHM councils should talk

Dysart Reeve Murray Fearrey has opened the new council term by suggesting the Haliburton council should meet with the municipal council for Anson, Hindon and Minden in an effort to improve the working relationship between the municipalities.

"If council is agreeable to that, we can have (Clerk-Treasurer) Donna (McCallum) go through the proper channels and invite them to a meeting so we can get to know them and perhaps we can get by some of this — these things we hear on the street that should be dealt with somewhere else," said Fearrey.

An ongoing, if by turns, subtle, rivalry has existed between the two jurisdictions for years — and has been aggravated most recently by a decision regarding the allocation of health care resources in the county.

Fearrey also spoke of the importance of the sewer extension to the region, along with the financial health of the municipality, but seemed to caution fiscal restraint. Said Fearrey, "In terms of the fact that we're in good shape, we don't have a lot of growth. We're not experiencing four and five percent increases that allow us to go ahead and do things. I think we're seeing around two percent. So we're relatively limited in income. And we've all been saying during the election that we have to be more creative, and we have to find better ways of doing things."

Council approves request for chip truck licence

Council of Anson, Hindon and Minden approved a chip truck license application by Grant and Janet Hutchinson at last Thursday's meeting.

The Hutchinsons explained that they have been given approval from the owners of Ridgewood Ford to locate their converted school bus on the dealership's property on Highway 35.

Grant Hutchinson said that the term "chip truck" isn't an accurate description of his operation. He said it was "more like a mobile canteen", offering hamburgers, hotdogs, chicken fingers and other fare besides French Fries.

The Hutchinsons have been operating the mobile canteen in Ops Township near Lindsay since this past spring. They are moving to Minden and approached council in hopes of operating the business "close to home".

"We're not fly-by-nighters," Grant Hutchinson assured council.

He told council that although his operation is larger than most chip trucks, it is very mobile.

"We can be packed up and moving in a very short time," he said.

He explained that he currently has a special events licence, which permits location of the operation at such events as auctions.

Hutchinson was advised that the municipality requires that such operations be at least 1000 feet from the nearest established take out food outlet and that the Ridgewood Ford location may be within 1000 feet of other food vendors. Hutchinson explained that his operation doesn't compete with sit-down restaurants, but in any event, he is sure the distance is greater than the prescribed minimum from the nearest take out vendor.

Hours of operation would be from about 10 or 11 a.m. to dark, according to Grant Hutchinson. He said that during the winter months, it may only be open on weekends or during special events.

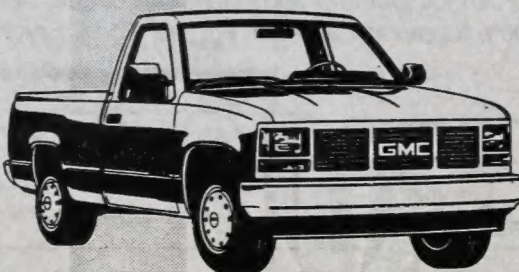

Approval for the licence is subject to Ministry of Health approval and municipal by-laws governing such operations. The licence fee is $500.

An opportunity not to be missed

The construction of a new administration building for Haliburton County moved a step closer this week with the announcement from the federal and provincial governments that they are willing to provide two-thirds of the estimated $2.4 million needed to construct it. As stated before in this space, we believe going ahead with the building would be a wise investment in the future on the part of the new County Council.

There are a number of compelling reasons for the project to move ahead. The present structure is obviously inadequate, both in space and in its own 'infrastructure', such as heating, to meet the needs of the growing responsibilities and workload which the county has been (and will be) assuming. As well, constructing an addition to the present structure will do little to solve the problems of the antiquated building and we believe is simply throwing good money after bad.

As the current Warden Jim McMahon has pointed out, a number of provincial services currently available in the county are considering reducing their presence here. While financial constraints are driving some of these moves, inadequate facilities could be the deciding factor between the loss of service here or in another community. Once a service is lost to the county, it is highly unlikely it will ever find its way back. Providing a modern facility which specifically meets the needs of these services will help to ensure their presence in the county for years to come.

Is this the right time to be spending tax dollars on construction projects? The answer appears to be, YES. Most of the municipalities in the county have taken advantage of the federal/provincial infrastructure program to build new roads, offices and sewer improvements. As anyone involved in municipal government is well aware, the time when senior levels of government offered what amounts to 33 cent dollars in the form of support grants is long past. It is highly unlikely municipalities will be offered grants at that rate any time in the near future.

If accessing infrastructure funds is right for municipal projects, then it is right for county purposes as well. The new county council would be remiss if it allowed this opportunity to slip by without taking advantage of it.

Togetherness attitude

Editor:

Women are to blame for everything that is wrong on the face of the earth. That's my premise and I'm sticking to it.

If the world is to be saved from destruction then attitudes must change. Attitudes begin with women. This means that women must be made aware of their power to change reality. The future is depending on us, and our highly intelligent, inventive co-inhabitants.

Men too, must realize that women must be made smarter and more responsible or we all die. Not that death is not inevitable, yes it is, but do we have to blow the whole place up before we leave?

Women must face what they have done by not taking a share-and-share-alike attitude. World government and world sharing are both possible with a togetherness attitude. There is a substitute for capitalism, it just means a complete attitude adjustment.

Found article misleading

Editor:

I am writing in reference to a recent article which ran in the December 5, edition of The Times titled "Carving out a special niche in the banking world." In the article the individual was quoted as saying "Minden is a full service branch which offers commercial lending as well as personal banking services and it's the only one in town that offers both." This is in fact not a true statement. A full range of commercial lending services are offered through the Minden Branch of the CIBC. A fully qualified commercial lender is on site one day a week and available at anytime to offer advice and discuss possible commercial financing requirements.

I personally found the article misleading and damaging to possible future commercial lending opportunities for our Branch.

Yours truly,

R.C. (Clyde) Russell
Manager, CIBC Minden

Supports second term for Warden

Editor:

Re your editorial December 5, 1994 re selection of the Warden for Haliburton County for the coming year. Your editorial has a lot of merit, especially public input in the selection process and the candidates publicly declaring their plans and proposals for the county for the next year.

If I recall correctly Warden Jim McMahon in his acceptance speech this year did announce his plans and the direction he hoped to take the County plus he stated that it would without doubt take more than one year to see the programs underway and completed. I gather this would also be the incentive to County Council to consider a possible two year term for a Warden with a vision; there is no indication that this is the plan or that it was even considered. If the rumour mills are correct it appears that the backrooms are already rife with politicking for another candidate who may well be an excellent candidate, but would it not make sense to finish the old business and maintain some continuity?

I feel Mr. McMahon has certainly performed his duties conscientiously and with the best interest of the county foremost in mind. He never backed away from the issues, he tried to deal with them as fairly as possible and he knew his place. No one is asked to agree with every decision he made. He tried very hard to correct deficits and work with people under difficult circumstances and for this I congratulate him. We did not always agree but he is a man for whom I have developed a high respect.

I would certainly hope that in the selection process he is not bypassed if he wishes to have the opportunity to complete the projects he initiated. I do know there are many deserving and competent people waiting in the wings but let us also consider stability and continuity, not our wants but our needs.

Yours sincerely,

Gordon A. Monk,
Minden

Vision & performance

Editor:

Your editorial of December 5, 1994 could not have been more timely if you had planned it that way.

The Warden's job should be controlled by the residents at large and should be judged by the past performance of the candidate, his vision of the future of the County and his business plan on how he would lead the Council to achieve their objective.

The current Warden, Jim McMahon, is the first Warden in many years to lead Haliburton County forward, and in improving our planning for the future. He has such a plan, and with part of it already approved, the residents at large in the County should be allowed to participate in the election for Warden now. Let us join together and do something positive for a change.

Coverage appreciated

Editor:

The members of the Haliburton Highlands Children's Concert Series would like to thank you for the fine support that you have given us during our subscription campaign and leading up to our first concert.

However, in your write up of our first concert it was indicated that all the concerts would be at Archie Stouffer School. Only the next concert with Judy and David (Jan. 22) will be at ASES. The Ontario Ballet production of The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe (Feb 26) and Kirk and Magoo (Apr 2) will be at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

In spite of all our efforts we are still short on our sales. So, we have decided to offer the remaining three concerts for $15. Tickets are available by calling Sheila at 286-4240 or Marilou at 457-1889.

These concerts would make an excellent Christmas gift for any child.

Thank you again,

Eric Lillius,

Wage rates must remain competitive: Hodgson

(Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson offers the following observations on the recent increases to Ontario's minimum wage rates.)

Any discussion of the minimum wage must first be put into context. Of all its neighbouring competitors, both provinces and states, Ontario has the highest minimum wage. For workers who have jobs, this wage difference is of great benefit.

Unfortunately, for thousands of able and willing people who are trying to find a job there is a downside to this equation. With many employers still struggling to recover from the depths of the recession, there is very little cash available to re-hire former employees, let alone recruit new ones. The sad reality is that higher minimum wage rates discourage expansion of the labour force, especially in the tourism, hospitality and agriculture industries which are so vital to the economy

Blame Philo T. Farnsworth

If I was to say to you, "Let us now praise famous men," you wouldn't have much trouble coming up with a half a dozen or so names, right?

We've got an impressive list to choose from --Einstein, Edison, Nureyev, Picasso, Bertrand Russell and Churchill come immediately to mind--and that is without even venturing outside of this century.

The same applies to famous women: Marie Curie, Eleanor Roosevelt, Georgia O'Keefe, Indira Ghandi, Virginia Woolf, and our own Roberta Bondar-- to name but six sterling females off the top of my head.

But what if I was to tell you there is one man who has probably had more of a direct impact on your life than all of the above put together--and what if I was to tell you that you've almost certainly never heard of him?

Ladies and gentlemen, allow me to introduce Mister Philo T. Farnsworth.

I know...it sounds like the kind of name you'd hear in a comedy sketch on Hee Haw, but Philo T. Farnsworth was a living, breathing, human. A farm boy from Idaho, as a matter of fact. You probably never heard of Farnsworth, but you certainly know his work.

Farnsworth is the man who gave us television.

Photographing images and transmitting them by air waves wasn't an idea that originated with Farnsworth. Inventors in France, Britain and the U.S.A. had been toying with the theory of television for a good half century before anyone actually sat down and tried to make a working TV set. A German inventor came up with an 'imaging machine' away back in 1884. In 1927, a British tinkerer managed to transmit a wavering, almost unrecognizable image from Glasgow all the way to London.

But television as we know it wasn't possible until a 21 year old Idaho Mormon constructed, tested and finally patented a 'scanning cathode ray tube'. Philo T. Farnsworth did just that in 1930. That same year, an engineer working

RCA, the radio Corporation of America, managed to put together a vastly superior automatic camera. Just a few months later, W2RBX, the world's first experimental television station went on the air in New York.

If you had been one of the very few lucky souls with a functioning television receiver back then, you would have heard-- and seen-- Kate Smith warbling "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain."

The era of television was born.

Think for a moment of the TV moguls who owe their careers, not to mention their fortunes, to Philo. Think of the hundreds of millions of dollars that are generated by and for NBC, CBS, ABC, CNN, CBC, CTV, to name just a few of the communication giants on this continent.

Would you care to guess what the very first image was that Philo chose to transmit as a test pattern back on that fateful day in 1930? Well, he had to pick a symbol he knew would have instant recognition. Philo may have been a hick, but he was nobody's fool. He chose the dollar sign.

Just think of it--if one Idaho plough-boy had stuck with the family farm instead of monkeying around with a lot of wires and tubes, we might never have had Bonanza. No Stark Trek. No Live With Ralph Benmurgi.

But for Philo T. Farnsworth, we might never have heard of Milton Berle or Roseanne or Geraldo.

If Philo T. Farnsworth had been conveniently trampled by a runaway horse in 1926, we wouldn't know the meaning of Andy Rooney, the Home Shopping Channel, Anthony Robbins Infomercials or Dialling for Dollars.

You owe us big time, Philo.

On the Street

by Times Staff

It was a pleasure to see so many residents out on the streets of Minden December 2 for the community's annual Moonlight Madness pre-Christmas sale. The event was certainly favoured by ideal weather conditions and most stores were busy right up to closing. As in the past, the evening turned into more than just a shopping excursion for most people. It was a great time to stop and chat with neighbours and friends and in many ways rekindled the "old tyme" spirit of the Christmas season.

SHOW WINNERS

Wendy Gunning of County Commercial Printing in Haliburton will be shooting a lot straighter and Eleanor Hall of Floyd Hall Insurance will be a little more calculating, following a product fair held recently at PineStone Resort. Sponsored by the business equipment supplier, Office Connection, in Peterborough, and Canon, the show featured the latest in electronics for the office. The two business women were winners of the door prizes. Wendy won a Canon Sure Shot 200 mm camera while Eleanor was presented with a Canon calculator.

MAIN STREET

The changes on Minden's Main Street haven't gone unnoticed. With the completion of the new building between the drug store and the Coneybeare building, we welcome some new business to the community's main street. Apparitions has moved two doors east into the new building and will share the store front with the Financial Concept Group. Meanwhile, Of Sound Body with Physiotherapist Barbara Wright and Registered Massage Therapist Jacqueline Ziorjen is located on the second floor of the same building. Campbell's Flowers and Gifts will be opening a second store in the former Apparitions location. More on these changes in the near future.

Reduce payroll deductions: MPP

of every community in Victoria-Haliburton.

Students, recent graduates and people who are re-entering the workforce, are all eager to gain experience in different fields and occupations, but upward pressure on the minimum wage is reducing the number of opportunities that they would otherwise have.

The minimum wage, or the total cost of labour for that matter, also plays an important role in determining the selling price of goods and services in our area. By dictating a higher wage, the government is indirectly increasing the cost of restaurant food, cottage rentals, agricultural products and a whole host of products and conveniences from which the people of our community derive their living. As these commodities become more expensive, the thousands of people who would normally spend their money here will begin shopping elsewhere to maximize the value they get for their hard earned dollars.

If the government is truly concerned about the well being of workers, it should take a long hard look at the amount of payroll deductions that it imposes on each and every pay cheque. By keeping the minimum wage at the current rate and reducing payroll deductions we could accomplish the same objective — more money in people's pockets — without raising the cost of doing business. When given the choice between having more jobs at the current rate of pay or fewer jobs that pay more, the choice is simple: More Jobs!

Legion bantams score three goals in 13 seconds

by Jerry Grozelle

A pair of home games on the weekend of December 3 and 4 saw the Minden Legion bantams outscore the opposition 12-3, winning both games.

The Saturday game was the most decisive of the weekend for the Minden boys. They tripled the visiting Mariposa squad 9-3.

Although the Monarchs scored first, in the early stages it looked as though the opposition was able to keep pace. Jason Kasepchuk scored on a setup from Jason Horsley 3:09 after the opening faceoff. Mariposa erased the Minden lead just 25 seconds later.

The Legion squad went ahead again at the 6:45 mark on an unassisted goal by Kirk Smith. With four seconds left in the opening frame, the Monarchs got another boost when Smith notched his second of the game to give the home side a 3-1 advantage going into the second. Rod Upton assisted.

Mariposa bounced back with a goal 43 seconds after the faceoff to start the second period. The visitors drew back to even terms midway through the frame.

Mariposa's third goal seemed to spark the Monarchs. Twenty seconds later, Upton scored the first of three Minden goals in a span of 13 seconds. Smith and Matt Cheeseman assisted. Six seconds later, Horsley made it 5-3 for Minden with Kasepchuk assisting. That combination worked so well, they did it again seven seconds later.

Three minutes elapsed before the Monarchs struck again. Smith rounded out his hat trick, with the assist going to Cheeseman. Then, with 13 seconds remaining in the period, Horsley became the second player of the game to notch a hat trick. His unassisted goal gave the Monarchs an 8-3 lead.

Upton scored the only goal of the third period, from Smith and Cheeseman.

When the Sunderland bantams came to Minden on December 4, they gave the Legion boys a better run for their money.

Smith drew first blood for the Monarchs with the lone goal of the first period. Kasepchuk assisted on the opening goal.

Minden went in front 2-0 midway through the second frame. Kasepchuk was the sharpshooter, with Curtis Barry and Horsley assisting.

Sunderland rebounded with two goals before the period ended to knot the game at 2-2 going into the third.

The score remained tied for most of the third. But Horsley notched the go ahead marker with 3:12 remaining and the Monarchs held on for the 3-2 win. Smith earned an assist on the winning goal.

Redmen hockey team wins two more

by Jerry Grozelle

Opposition teams in the Kawartha High School Hockey League are learning that a two- or three-goal lead early in a game isn't enough to beat the Haliburton Redmen. That point has been proven a few times already this season, including both of last week's games.

The game in Fenelon Falls on December 6 saw the Redmen spot the Falcons two goals in the first period before rebounding to win by a 6-4 count.

Fenelon saw its 2-0 lead evaporate in the second period when the Redmen scored four in a row. The Falcons added one to the home side of the scoreboard with 25 seconds left in the middle frame, cutting Haliburton's lead to 4-3.

Jackie Morrison got the Redmen rolling at the 1:01 mark of the second period. Jonathan Bishop and Mark Stamp assisted. Then, in a span of three and a half minutes, three more goals were added to the HHSS total. Bishop scored two of those markers. The first was assisted by Tim Stouffer and Stamp and the second was set up by Dennis Woods and Stamp. In between Bishop's goals, Curtis Fielding notched one, from Dan Pocklington.

Stamp scored both of the third-period tallies for the Redmen. Morrison and Jeff Wray set one up and the other was unassisted (with three seconds left in the game).

The next day the Redmen played host to the Crestwood Mustangs.

Once again, the Redmen were flat during the first period, allowing the opposition to build up a 3-0 lead.

The second period was almost over before Mark Morissette scored. Just 12 seconds remained when Stamp and Morrison combined to set Morissette up for Haliburton's first goal.

Morissette netted the second Haliburton goal at the 1:08 mark of the third period, cutting Crestwood's lead to 3-2.

Bishop set that one up.

A solo effort by Stamp with 6:01 left in the game evened the game at 3-3. The winner was scored with 2:55 remaining in the third. Bishop was the sniper, with Morissette drawing the assist.

The Redmen are scheduled to play host to Lindsay's I.E. Weldon Wildcats this Wednesday (December 14) in Haliburton. The opening faceoff will be at 8 p.m.

TIED UP: A Crestwood defender keeps Redmen sniper Mark Stamp (8) in check during last Wednesday's Kawartha High School Hockey League game in Haliburton. Stamp scored one goal in this 4-1 win keeping a firm grip on the lead in the league's scoring race. He has 31 points, 12 ahead of his nearest rival.

Minden seniors host mixed bonspiel

Some friendly competition took place when the members of the Minden Seniors Curling Club hosted their counterparts from Haliburton for the annual Mixed Bonspiel. Minden club officials report that the day was a great success, both socially and competitively.

The event consisted of two separate draws in the morning with four teams from each club in each draw.

During the lunch period, the curlers discussed the poor shots and how to correct them and some had the opportunity to brag about the good shots.

After lunch, the two draws continued, with the high teams from the first draws pitted against each other and remaining teams competing for a further six ends.

When the competition was over, the Haliburton club earned the majority of the accolades.

The first draw winners were from the Minden club. They were: skip Ross Davies, vice Katie Parker, second Keith Fountain and lead Chris Dollo.

Second place in the first draw went to the Haliburton team of Bill Hare (skip), Hilda Sealey (vice), Ross Partridge (second) and Kelly Metcalf (lead).

Haliburton's Doug Sealey (skip), Vic

Ibbotson (vice), Ted Wilkes (second) and Hilda Geary (lead) finished third in the first draw.

The team skipped by Ralph Palmer of Haliburton took first place in the second draw. His team included vice Anne Winger, second Tom Regan and lead Gerry Palmer.

Nick Nimigon skipped the second place team of the second draw, with teammates Murray Norman (vice), Jacqueline Metcalf (second) and Pat Norman (lead).

Third place in the second draw went to the

Minden Men's Hockey Association

Foster earns shutout in Stamp's win over Times

by Jerry Grozelle

In contrast to the week before, only one of the three Minden Men's Hockey Association games was close.

WESTSIDE 6, HARTWICK 5

The first game of the December 5 schedule was the closest of the three with Westside Jug City holding on for a 6-5 win over Hartwick Construction.

Westside scored the first two goals of the game but before the buzzer sounded to end the first half, Hartwick had notched two replies to make it a brand new game going into the second.

Westside exploded for four in a row to take a 6-2 lead. The Hartwick crew kept chipping away at that lead but ran out of time before an equalizer could be scored.

Scott Hamilton was the biggest thorn in the Hartwick crew's side. He scored a hat trick and assisted on one more. The other snipers for the winning side were Scott Danilko, Andy Campbell and Craig Crowe. Crowe had three assists to go with his goal. Danilko and John Fedeski had two helpers each and single assists went to Dave Pettes and Paul Walker.

The Hartwick scoring was spread out, with Dean Sisson, Ritchie Mills, Gord Wood, Andrew Burke and Glen Hall notching one apiece. Mills and Ivan Ingram had two assists each, while Jason Stamp, Shane Yateman and Clarke Craig had one apiece.

STAMP 4, TIMES 0

Brett Foster earned the shutout as Sid Stamp Fuels blanked The Times 4-0 in the evening's second game.

Scott Nesbitt, Dave Dollo and Boomer Stamp scored one each for the winners in the first half and Trini Elias added one to the Stamp total in the second half. Assists went to Eldon Bull, Greg Hurrell and Jarrett Campbell (one each).

HOME 10, KDD 1

Home Hardware had a field day in the night's late game, skating to a 10-1 romp over Kountry Double D.

A lone unassisted goal by KDD's John Hewson in the second half was all that spoiled Rob Crowe's shutout bid between the Home pipes.

Wyatt Nesbitt paced the Home Hardware assault with four goals. Dave Hartwick scored twice and helped set up five more. Lawrence Loughed contributed a pair of goals and three assists to the winning cause. The other goal scorers for Home Hardware were Andy Schollig and Kent Taylor. Taylor also had two assists. Kim Colliss and Jim Crawford added one assist each to the Home tally.

The Minden Men's Hockey Association plays three games every Monday evening beginning at 8 p.m.

Seniors mixed bonspiel

Minden team skipped by Bill Milford, with vice Ursula Dymott, second Syd Adamson and lead Gina Blyth.

Overall winners of the bonspiel were the members of Ralph Palmer's rink from Haliburton. They succeeded in taking the honours away from Minden skip Ross Davies, whose team took the brass ring last year.

Davies presented the Art Hodgson Trophy to Palmer's team.

The Minden club will have the opportunity to regain its honours when the two clubs meet again on January 17. It will be the Haliburton club's turn to host a mixed seniors bonspiel on that day.

Minden Seniors Curling Club officials expressed their appreciation to all the members who worked so hard to make the November 30 event such a success.

Circumstances Alter Beaver

Performances please patrons

Dale McConnell's Grade 8 class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School presented a play entitled Circumstances Alter Beaver for the entertainment of family and friends last week.

Based loosely on the television series Leave It To Beaver, the play was adapted to include the whole class. There was no prepared script to follow. Ideas for different scenes were expanded upon and concepts, rather than scripted lines, were acted out.

"I was really pleased with the performances and enthusiasm of the students," McConnell said.

Preparations started in late September and students worked out the content of the play and rehearsed in spare time over the past two and a half months.

The class gave two performances -- one for the school and the other for the families and friends. An estimated 100 people turned out last Wednesday evening for the latter. The play took about an hour to perform.

McConnell said that the class may soon start working on another play to be presented in April or May. The next play would be based on The Beverly Hillbillies.

ATTITUDE ADJUSTMENT: Aunt Martha, played by Alisha Stevens, gives Clarence (Lumpy) Rutherford, played by Jake Hirstwood, an attitude adjustment during a scene from Circumstances Alter Beaver. The play was presented by the 8B class at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last week. An estimated 100 people took advantage of the free entertainment on family night.

Reeve Anthon casts deciding vote

Council split on conveyance

In spite of protests from Dr. Donald Campbell, Anson, Hindon and Minden council voted three to two in favour of conveying part of the shoreline allowance along Brady Lake to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Keller.

"All I'm looking for is assurance that I will still have access to my cottage," Campbell told council.

Campbell expressed the concern that if part of the road that he currently uses to get to his cottage were closed, he would be left without access.

Council has contacted the municipality's solicitor and was assured that alternate access was available to Campbell in the form of an unopened shore allowance.

"To build a road on that unopened shoreline allowance would probably cost a million dollars," Campbell protested. "It's four and a half miles over three mountains and through virgin forest."

Deputy-reeve Lewis

Stevens stated that he felt the property should not be closed and conveyed to the Kellers unless there was some assurance that Campbell would retain reasonable access to his cottage.

The Kellers argued that the property in question has nothing to do with the existing road, which doesn't cross their property. They asked for the conveyance because they plan to expand their house. Almost the entire house is situated on the road allowance now, as are portions of six others along that section of lakefront. The Kellers are concerned about the encroachment onto the shoreline allowance and the legalities, should they ever decide to sell. The building was in place when the Kellers bought the property.

Deputy-reeve Lewis Stevens called for a recorded vote. Councillors Grant Plooard and Jerry Rome and reeve Jeanne Anthon voted in favour of the resolution to convey the property to the Kellers. Stevens and councillor Daryl Moore voted against it.

Rule of thumb for smart drinkers

If you choose to drink, enjoy. But before you sip, here are some tips to keep your risk of alcohol problems low.

- Tip 1. Count your drinks. Have no more than 12 drinks a week and no more than 4 drinks (men) or 3 drinks (women) on any day. The less you drink, the lower your risk.
- Tip 2. Count the time between drinks. Start slow and allow yourself one hour before your next drink to avoid becoming drunk.
- Tip 3. Give yourself a breather between drinks. Mineral water, dealcoholized beer and fruit drinks are good substitutes for alcohol.

Birders ready for annual count

While the substantial snowfall of late November no doubt encouraged many people to fill up their bird feeders, many of the birds are still enjoying the abundance provided by one of the best wild food crops in years.

However, as this food supply is reduced or covered by snow or ice, the many birds which have been encouraged to linger will visit well-stocked feeders in ever-increasing numbers. The rule that the early-stocked feeder gets the greatest variety of birds applies just as clearly this year as in any other.

Goldfinches seem to be one of the most abundant small finches in the Minden area this year. Although their olive winter plumage is less spectacular than the bright black and gold of summer, they are still a delight to watch at feeders stocked with Niger seed. Purple finches are widespread as well. Their heavier bills allow them to shell large or small sunflower seeds with ease. Evening grosbeaks seem to be late in arriving, but we have never had a Christmas count without them in 27 years. If you can stock enough sunflower seeds to stay ahead of the hungry blue jays, you will no doubt wake up one morning to the bright yellow and noisy chatter of a flock of these winter favourites. Other finches about in smaller numbers include red and white-winged crossbills and pine siskins.

Most chickadee flocks this fall seem to be accompanied by more than the normal numbers of red and white breasted nuthatches, brown creepers, golden crowned kinglets, downy woodpeckers and blue jays. This is another indication of the abundance of seeds, many of which have now fallen from their cones, but which are still be found easily on the ground and in cracks and hollows in tree branches. The large quantities of fallen seeds should encourage more slate-coloured juncos to remain, many of which will show up in yards where cracked corn or white millet are scattered on the ground.

The 28th annual Minden Christmas bird census will take place on Saturday December 17. The 15 mile diameter count circle includes Moore Falls, Kinmount, Irondale, Lochlin, Mountain Lake, Bob Lake and all areas in between. The organizers would really like to hear from as many folks as possible about the birds at your feeder and in your neighbourhood. Of particular interest are summer birds which have lingered, uncommon winter birds and water fowl. If you have gray jays visiting, (they especially like suet and other fat meat), we would really like to hear from you.

The Minden count is held in conjunction with bird counts taking place across North America. Coordinated by the US National Audubon Society, this is the 95th year this annual census has been conducted. The Minden count is one of 1650 which will take place on this continent. Counts are also held in central and south America, Bermuda, the West Indies and Pacific Islands. The census provides an annual snapshot of local bird numbers and is combined with data from the other counts to provide a benchmark for assessing the well-being of the bird population and a reflection of the state of the environment.

If you would like to join one of the groups this Saturday, you are most welcome. Please contact one of the following: Ed Poropat 457-3018; Ron Pittaway at 286-3471; or Pearl Barry at 286-1189.

Young snowmobile drivers learn the rules of the road, and the trail

by Andrew Milne

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association (HCSA) is conducting snowmobile education courses for young drivers again this year.

The courses are open to persons 12 years and older who do not have a valid driver's license (a driver's license entitles you to drive a snowmobile).

Larry Hutchinson is one of the trainers.

"What we do," says Hutchinson, "is equip them with the kind of information they need to write a written test — 25 questions. And they have to pass it with 80 percent. Plus we pass on probably 40 years of snowmobiling experience — you know — stuff that could maybe save their lives."

"We try to make them familiar with the rules," he says, "the snowmobile traffic act... We teach them the restrictions that their license comes with as a twelve-year old."

Hutchinson and fellow trainer Mike Burke are licensed by the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) to conduct the training, which is funded by the MTO, the HCSA, and the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs (OFSC).

Sessions are tentatively planned for December 29, and January 21. Persons interested in the courses can contact Burke at 754-2637, or Hutchinson at 754-4225.

Class in session

Constable Mike Landry of the Ontario Provincial Police explains the rules of the trail to a class of would-be snowmobilers. The driver education courses are sponsored by the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association.

Community policing serves the citizens of Wilberforce

Looking after one another

by Andrew Milne

There is one phone on the desk and a wall full of patrol schedules. The office is open three evenings a week.

And increasingly, in this era of cutbacks and small staffs spread thin, the police are counting on their assistance.

The future of policing works out of this small, cramped office in Wilberforce.

The Wilberforce and Area Police Volunteer Association (WAPVA) is one of several community policing associations operating in Haliburton County. Begun in September 1993, the association now has 83 volunteers dedicated to looking after their community.

John Goverde is president of the WAPVA. He says people that get involved with the association do so out of a sense that it's something that just has to be done.

Says Goverde, "They feel that sooner or later you have to start looking after yourselves. There aren't enough officers to go around. They get burdened down with so much other stuff, they're going to need help."

Among other initiatives, the Wilberforce group does regular checks of seasonal residences, to ensure that the doors are locked and that no one has broken into cottages left vacant for long periods.

Goverde says WAPVA did over a thousand cottages this fall, and has already received positive feedback from landowners.

"People appreciate that when you go out," he says. "We've had a few calls already since we did it last Saturday (November 26), people who've been up...

They appreciate it."

Goverde says the group also sometimes receives calls from the police, if they're busy and can't get a unit out quickly enough.

"We had one not too long ago," says Goverde. "Mr. (Don) Wilson got the call from the OPP 'comm' centre in Peterborough that there was an attempted break and enter at the arena. Right off the bat we had some people go out and check it. And sure as heck there was someone had been trying in there, but he got out before we got there."

"Either that," he continues, "or he was going to get his truck, because he had the door jammed open with a stick of wood... but by that time the OPP came down too, and we checked the whole building and everything."

"We didn't find him, but that's one instance where we're sure we stopped someone from getting away with it."

And Wilson, who watches the phones at the office, recounts an occasion on which association members set up flares around an overturned semi-trailer truck on Highway 121. The police generally prefer that volunteers stay away from the motor vehicle accidents, says Goverde, but with logs lying all over the highway, they wanted something done as soon as possible.

Goverde is full of praise for other members of the organization.

"The group that we've got, I must say are fantastic. I'm not from here. I have a cottage in this area, but I'm actually from Whitby... Wilberforce has always been, in my opinion, a community that won't quit. Once they take something on, they'll keep on going. And once they volunteer to do something, they'll see it through. And this is what struck me, and this is why I took this on. I know the people. They're not quitters. They've got a lot of guts and they really put their mind to it."

Goverde says he feels community policing is really a return to an earlier way of doing things.

Says Goverde, "In my opinion community policing is what we used to have 25, 30, 40 years ago. When your dad was sick and he couldn't get the hay in, your neighbours came in and helped out. We have to get back to looking after one another. This is the way I look at community policing."

All this for only $3*One high school, three comedies, and a host of student actors, writers, directors and crew members

by Misty Bennett, HHSS Student Reporter

Come one! Come all!

.....to the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School on December 14, as the HHSS Drama Club presents a night of comedy. The evening will feature three comedic plays and promises to be a truly entertaining night.

The first play, A Matter of Wife or Death, is a classic French farce written by Eugene Labiche. This play is directed by Mr. Wayne Cooper and stars: Jaime Kent, Bob Sisson, Susan Carr and Morgan Talaba.

The second performance of the night will be Fifteen Minute Hamlet performed by a selection of OAC students. This play is a 15 minute condensed version of the original and a two minute overview of the entire play. Two cast members will be exercising their memorization skills as they take on multiple roles. This play takes a few liberties with Shakespeare's work and may turn out to be better than the original. However, I'll let you be the judge of that!

The final play of the evening, Skeletons in the Closet was written by grade 12 student Cassie Weyrich. The play stars a cast of eight, all with very much equal billing. Weyrich started the play at the end of the last school year. She showed it to English teacher Mr. Bob Penfold and asked him if he would direct it. He agreed, and the play was completed in the summer. Why did she write the play? Weyrich sums it up this way, "I just wanted to see if I could do it."

Behind all these cast members and stars is a backstage crew like none other. "This year's crew is extremely hard working; it's the best backstage group we've had since I've been in high school," confirms Marc Letourneau, a member of the backstage group. This selection of students is in charge of lighting, backdrops, scenery, props, publicity and every other task imaginable.

This evening of entertainment is for one night only, December 14 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 at the door. The performances are open to the general public.

Meet the casts and crew of the three one act plays being presented this Wednesday at HHSS. The plays include Skeletons in the Closet, A Matter of Wife or Death and Fifteen Minute Hamlet. Among the group is Cassie Weyrich, Sarah Levis, Luke Talaba, Emily Alvarez, Janaka Fernando, Bryn Gray, Meggan Winsley, Valerie Patterson, Bob Sisson, Susan Carr, Morgan Talaba, Jaime Kent, Rob Obrovac, Anthony Mestroni, Damon Smith, Randy Smith, Marc Letourneau, Rudyard Edwards, teachers Wayne Cooper and Bob Penfold and backstage crew members. Absent, Kevin Brezina and Laura Lancia.

Solving bedtime problems

Q: Our son is eleven months old and has been sleeping in our bed for five months. How long will it take for him to feel comfortable enough to sleep by himself? Also, is it okay to let a baby cry himself to sleep?

A: From your question I gather that you are ready for your son to sleep by himself, and that you have confidence that he will learn this skill. You also understand that he will do this when he is comfortable; all of these are helpful attitudes when a child is learning to sleep by himself.

How long it will take depends on his personality and yours; you can help the process along by:

—making sure he gets lots of cuddling and other contact with you during the day (at eleven months he is probably highly mobile, and you may have to initiate contact).

—developing a bedtime routine including rocking, cuddling, reading, songs, bath, snack — whatever is pleasant and calming for both of you, ending with him going to sleep in his own bed, using whatever comfort objects he chooses (suggest one if he doesn't already have one). The idea of teaching him to go to sleep by himself rather than rocking him to sleep, or letting him fall asleep on the couch, etc., is that when he awakens partially during the night he will not have to waken you to duplicate the conditions he has learned to need for falling asleep.

—expressing your confidence in his ability to learn this new skill, and your willingness to support him in this. You can demonstrate this by entering this process gradually and with preparation, and by coming into his room to reassure him at intervals (no longer than 15 minutes) if he is upset. This stage of the learning is probably the least pleasant, but does not last long if you are able to be calm and consistently supportive, and to not give in and take him to your bed; if you do he learns that if he protests long enough he will get to your bed.

In answer to the second half of your question, if you mean brief protest at the injustice of having to leave the fascinating world of waking, lasting perhaps 5 minutes or so, this is not a problem. Babies, like the rest of us, have the right to express their feelings. However, if your baby has not yet learned to go to sleep by himself, and is in distress, leaving him to cry himself to sleep teaches him that the world is an unreliable, unresponsive place, and his only choice is to give up and shut down his overwhelming feelings. Instead, try the suggestions above, reassuring him at intervals that you are there, that you understand that it is hard to learn a new skill, and that you will support him in that.

Q: How can I get my six month, twenty pound son to nap in the afternoon? The most he will sleep is twenty minutes. Am I doing something wrong?

A: It sounds as though you are not pleased with the way things are going. The average six month old baby will need two naps during the day and about twelve hours sleep at night. Please note the word average—every baby and every family is unique, and what is ideal for your baby may be more or less than that, and on a different schedule. Some things you might check out, that could help in developing a regular routine for sleeping:—having a regular routine for other daily activities —eating, going outside, bathtime, etc.— developing a naptime/bedtime routine that works for you and ends in bed, consistently. Reserve boisterous activities for another time.—if you are introducing new foods, check for sensitivity by noting reactions such as restless sleep or over-activity. Try eliminating all forms of white sugar to see if that has an effect.—if your son is having trouble separating from you to go to sleep, try moving away gradually, in small steps, assuring him of your reliability and his safety, until he is ready to go to sleep by himself.

Q: My son is almost seventeen months old and he doesn't talk yet. I realize it's too soon for him to be constructing sentences but he can't even say "Daddy" or "Mommy". He doesn't verbalize at all. He makes sounds and he's extremely active and well coordinated for his age. He walked at nine months. Should I be worried? Is there anything I can do?

A: It is true that there is a wide age range that is considered "average" for developing skills such as language, and that skill areas often do not develop evenly. In fact, often we will see one area, such as language, show little or no progress when another area, such as gross motor, is leaping ahead.

This may have been true for your son, but usually, once a child is walking, his increased ability to explore leads to a burst of language acquisition. At seventeen months it is usual to have at least a few words that parents understand, and we would also expect some expressive babbling, rather like conversation in another language.

It might be helpful to call Kinark's Infant Development Program or to ask your doctor for a referral to a language specialist. There are more questions that need to be asked, such as: How much language does your son understand? How does he communicate other than verbally? Meantime, there is much that you can do—in fact you are probably in the best position to be your son's "teacher".

Give him a "language bath", talking about what you are doing, what he is doing, sharing your interesting ideas, and offering spaces for him to comment. Accept whatever comment he makes, vocal or otherwise, and turn it into words for him e.g. "Ah, you want the blue truck." At times, give clear, short labels for things he is focused on, "shoe", "apple juice", "truck". Try to pause in your activities and focus directly on him when you are in conversation, dropping to his level if possible and making eye contact.

Try to avoid "testing": asking "What's that?" repeatedly; your son is heading into a stage when he will likely do testing of his own, and you could get into a power struggle that no one wins. Read to him, sing to and with him, perhaps action songs. Have confidence that he will learn to communicate, and be watchful for the communications that he does make.

The 'trickle-down' theory isn't working

Governments on all sides of the political spectrum at the federal, provincial and local level, are obsessed with cutting costs and becoming competitive in the global marketplace.

In a deficit-preoccupied time, it seems strange to hear that culture should be a major economic focus as former UN secretary general Perez de Cuellar believes. He was appointed president of the World Commission on Culture and Development (WCCD) established by UNESCO in 1993 with a mandate to "seek new ways of linking culture - in its broadest sense - to a form of development that goes beyond mere economic growth."

Perez de Cuellar writes: "Culture is the key to development...the dimension that has been missing from the dominant model of development; a model based solely on economic growth and which, from all available evidence, has failed." De Cuellar points out that while economies are growing in most parts of the world, jobs are not.

Every country in Sub-Saharan Africa has double-digit unemployment and even developing countries with high economic growth like India and Pakistan have 15 per cent unemployment. As Canadians and the British well know, double-digit unemployment is not peculiar to developing nations.

De Cuellar insists that "the gap dividing our societies, in North and South alike, cannot simply be overcome by injecting capital, infrastructure, technology or expertise. Solutions are needed that are not solely reliant on classical economic theory and unlimited growth - but take people and their cultures into account and do not endanger the environment - solutions that give the notion of development more "soul". This will require a radical change in our behaviour and soon."

The WCCD has documented the shocking disparity between rich and poor countries (UNESCO Sources #58, May 1994). Ever since the '50s as the global economy grew at an unprecedented rate, business people, economists and politicians have repeated like a mantra that steady economic growth in the industrialized nations is the means whereby wealth can "trickle down" to the poor. The UNESCO report's headline torpedoes that rationale "Despite growth - the disparities are increasing."

In the interval during which GNP per capita has risen worldwide at an unprecedented rate, "Inequalities have also increased - between rich countries and poor, between affluent populations and those who are improv-erished and more recently, between those who have a job and the ever-swelling ranks of those who don't."

When the world's population is ranked by wealth and then subdivided into five groups of equal number then "in 1990, the richest group received 59 times more than the poorest. Despite growth of almost three per cent per annum worldwide of per capita GNP over the past three decades, this is almost double the ratio of 30:1 in 1960.

"In that year, the richest 20 per cent already controlled 70.2 per cent of global GNP. In 1990 this had climbed to 82.7 per cent. In 1960, the poorest 20 per cent had to get by with only 2.3 per cent which by 1990 had fallen to 1.4 per cent."

The report goes on to state that "these figures conceal the true scale of injustice since they are based on comparisons of average per capita incomes of rich and poor countries and do not take into account the wide disparities between rich and poor people in each of these countries...The absolute difference in per capita income between the top 20 per cent and the bottom 20 per cent of world population expressed in 1989 U.S. dollars, increased between 1960 and 1989 from $1,864 to $15,149!"

The growing disparity in wealth, demands an overhaul of the trickle-down notion implicit in the current model of economic development, especially with the widespread phenomenon of "jobless growth".

"Everywhere without exception, the quantity of goods and services has increased faster than the number of people working to produce them. We are seeing growth with proportionally less job creation, due mainly to the scientific and technological revolution."

The chilling parts of the reports are graphs of employment and GDP from 1975 to 2000 for OECD countries, Latin America, South Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa. In every case, GDP rises faster than the number of jobs created, so unemployment rises! By the end of the century, a billion more jobs will be needed to reach full employment. WCCD experts agree it is "mission impossible". The long-held notion that profits become investments for future jobs, is not borne out. Instead, "investment goes first to increase productivity, which means reducing the size of the workforce."

The gap between economic growth and employment and in the wealth of the industrialized and developing nations, is growing. To the WCCD, we must rethink the relationship between culture, development and economics.

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Hyland Crest birthdays in December include Gertrude McKay on December 19, Anne Schultz on December 20, Louise Bishop December 21 and Reginald Booth on December 14. We wish them all well on their special day.

***

We understand the annual Christmas luncheon at Our Lady of Fatima church was a huge success and there were many happy winners from the draw.

***

Weekend guests with Al and Ruth Rice were Carol, Donald, Jonathon, David and Lindy Sisson from Toronto.

***

Winners at the December 7 euchre games at Club 35 included Betty Mathews with most lone hands, Betty Culley and David Lamb with the highs, and Jean Hewitt, Cliff Woolner and Betty Mathews. The 50-50 draw went to Olive Jones.

***

We were informed the other day that Mrs. Olive Park, formerly of R.R. 1, Haliburton is now a resident of Pinecrest Nursing Home in Bobcaygeon. Old friends might like to drop a card.

***

The Lions Luxury Draw for December will be held Thursday, December 29 as there will be no bingo on the fourth Thursday of this month.

***

All good wishes to the following who are reportedly on the sick list: Harry Earle, Marian Ingram, Bill Coneybear and Verne Graham. We heard too that Bob Vick's surgery went well.

***

Winners at Minden Legion Branch 636 euchre games on December 8 included Verna McDonald and Roy McDonald with most lone hands, Judih Merritt and Ralph Schroder with the highs and Vina Dredge, Orval Francis, M. Smith, Roy McDonald, H. Smith and Gladys Wruth.

***

Recent visitors with Florence Robinson were Grace and Ern Voycey of Gamebridge and Linda Voycey of Calgary.

***

Saturday, December 3, Annie Kernohan and Maud Coulter were honoured at the Minden United Church Hall with a party celebrating Annie's 80th birthday and Maud's 85th birthday. A large crowd attended and both ladies were truly surprised. Belated birthday wishes to both of you from those of us who couldn't be there.

***

Minden Legion 636 Seniors Group and friends enjoyed a trip December 4 to have dinner at Ed's Warehouse in Toronto and also to attend the musical "Crazy for You". This group has great outings and everyone who goes has a wonderful time.

***

Afternoon euchre winners at St.

Paul's on December 5 included Jack Chilton, Nancy Gayton and Jay with the draw. Most lone hands went to Iris T. They welcome anyone interested in enjoying a good game of euchre and start at 1:30.

Kinmount Senior Citizens' held their Christmas Party at Kinmount Legion on December 7. A delicious roast beef dinner with Christmas Pudding was served. Santa handed out gifts, then there was excellent entertainment by the Grandfathers' Four plus one. Special thanks to Mildred St. Thomas and her committee for a delightful evening.

***

Sincere sympathy to the families and friends of the late Florence O'Neill, Kenneth Barton, David Lester, Lillian Davidson and Mrs. Jim Nesbitt who left us recently.

***

We've had a very busy week at The Terrace. We enjoyed our catered Christmas dinner on Friday December 2 with music by the Grandfathers Four Plus One. At our club meeting we planned to have Christmas dinner for the stay-at-homes and also a New Year's Eve party. Each week we have euchre games on Monday evenings, coffee hour and afternoon cribbage on Fridays and Bid Euchre on Saturday afternoons starting at 1 o'clock. Season's greetings to all from The Terrace residents.

CARDS OF THANKS

To All Our Many Supporters

A very grateful thank you for all your assistance in 1994 in supporting the Minden Community Foodbank/Cupboard. This includes the various churches of our area, some local service clubs, the Legion, local union groups, as well as a number of individuals. Your kind generosity has enabled us to reach out to many people this year. On their behalf we say: "May God continue to bless you all and may you have a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year." Thank you.

Thank you everyone for coming to my birthday party. The cards, lovely gifts and good wishes were really appreciated. A special thank you to the Martha Group of United Church for the generous lunch and a real surprise party which I thought was for Annie! Maud Coulter.

Vi and Ken Walsh would like to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to friends and neighbours for the floral tributes, visitations, memorial donations and cards of sympathy on the death of Mom, Florence O'Neill. A special thanks to the nurses and staff of the Minden Hospital, their kindness and care will always be appreciated. Thanks to Dr. Wu and Dr. Holliday-Rhodes for their care and assistance during Mom's illness. To the V.O.N. and the visiting Homemakers, thank you. To the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, thank you for your kindness, assistance and consideration at this most difficult time. Sincerely, Vi and Ken Walsh.

...a true friend is the greatest of all blessings, and that which we take the least care of all to acquire.

CARDS OF THANKS

On behalf of the Minden Lions Club committee for the Minden Community Santa Claus Parade, I wish to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to all those who participated and worked so hard for an excellent and well-received sixth annual Santa Claus Parade on December 3, 1994. A wonderful performance by the two marching bands, the Lindsay Kinsmen and the Haliburton Highlands Silver Flutes. To the OPP Minden Detachment, Keaney Motors, Ridgewood Ford, Minden Amateur Radio Club, Minden Community Police Association, Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636, Minden Fire Department, Stanhope Fire Department, Video Ads, Minden Fire Hall Volunteers, Minden Township employees and many, many more who worked hard to ensure another successful parade event once again. To the Rotary Club, Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636, Minden Lioness Club, Minden Kinettes and the B.I.A. of Minden who contributed so generously in financial support. To Kawartha Dairy, Westside Jug City who donated toward the children's delight at the fire hall and of course, let's not forget dear old Santa Claus who again delighted the children with his hearty HO HO HO and cheery words of things to come. Until next year, when he will visit once again. A Very Merry Christmas To One And All. R.H. for Minden Lions Club.

The Haliburton County Children's Concert Series would like to thank the following for their support: RTL Contracting, TMS Services, JBK Electric and K Enterprises for sponsoring the Iguanodon Theatre; Gabi Kassinger for all the fantastic artwork and banner; Haliburton Lumber; Cordell Interiors; Village Court Pharmacy and Easton's value-mart for their help with the Haliburton Santa Claus Parade.

To the doctors and staff of Minden Hospital, I wish to thank everyone for the care and attention I received during my recent stay. My thanks also to the ambulance personnel, their quick response was appreciated. Andrew Mackenzie.

LICHTY - In loving memory of our sons, Jeremy, lost to us December 18, 1990 and Jordan, taken July 27, 1992.

We love to think of you dear boys

In mansions bright and fair, There Jesus reigns in glory There is no sorrow there. They were flowers too great for earth

Sent here but for a while, God, for a moment gave them birth

And took them with a smile. Never forgotten by Daddy, Mommy and Jessica.
